

Practice Area Communications

Wherever you are doing your flight training, you will be going to a practice area. There will be specific procedures for going to and coming from the practice area. Depending on where you are they will be different. You will want to learn as much as you can about the procedures for these areas.

There should be at least one frequency. (In the Phoenix area there are many). You may want to ask around your flight school and then look around the airport. Your flight instructor should inform you of all the procedures available but in some cases they may not. You can always contact the local Flight Standards District Office and find them. Here is the link to locate the office nearest you.

In Phoenix we have a separate group made up of flight schools and FAA Personnel. It is the Phoenix Flight Training Workgroup. Here is their website.
